

In need of a new book this month? We've got you covered. Here are five great ideas for kids of all ages. Enjoy!

1. " Little Owl's Snow " by Divya Srinivasan. The leaves are changing color and the geese are flying away, and as Little Owl flies through the forest more signs of winter appear. When it begins to snow, the forest is transformed. Many of Little Owl's friends hibernate, but he finds new buddies in the ones who stay awake through the cold. A wonderful introduction to the changing of the seasons. Ages 2 to 6

2. " Once Upon a Snowstorm " by Richard Johnson. Father and son live by themselves in a cozy cabin in the woods. One day they are separated in the snow, and the boy is lost and falls asleep. When he wakes up he's surrounded by all kinds of creatures, who soon become his best friends. But he starts to miss his dad, and the animals bring him home. Their lonely existence is gone forever. Ages 4 to 7
