

school systems announced cancellation of activities planned for Sunday. Baltimore City, Baltimore County and Howard County schools also canceled activities Sunday. # The heaviest precipitation is forecast south and west of Baltimore, but Southern Maryland is also where sleet is most likely to mix in, forecasters said. # Southern Maryland, the Washington region including Prince George's and Montgomery counties, and much of Virginia and West Virginia are also under winter storm warnings. # Rosa said temperatures would remain around freezing in Central Maryland on Sunday, and were expected to " remain on the cold side " on Monday, so that " there really won't be much in the way of melting " until Tuesday. # Photos of weather in Maryland in 2018. # The storm was moving through the Plains and Midwest states Friday and Saturday, bringing snow from Kansas to Ohio. It was forecast to move into the Southeast and transfer its energy to a low-pressure system along the southern Atlantic coast Sunday. # There has been 1.4 inches of snow this season at Baltimore-Washington International Thurgood Marshall Airport, the Baltimore region's point of record. All of that came in November. There was not even a trace of December snow here for the first time since 2001, according to weather service statistics. # The weather service meteorologists tracking the storms across the country are working without pay during the government shutdown, but expect to be paid retroactively once the budget impasse is resolved.