

an adult. " # Stephen and Susan Lang pose with their children Joy and Bryson. Provided by Lang Family # " You sort of live with it yourself, " said Bryson Lang, who was 8 when his parents died. " So when you're with a bunch of people who went through the same shared experience... you see how far out it reaches people. It's one thing to talk to a stranger and say, ' This is what happened,' and they say, ' Oh, I remember that.' It's another thing to say, ' We all experienced that. " # Before various people, including the Langs, took turns reading victims' names, a bell was rung 31 times at 3:04 p.m. -- the time of the crash 40 years ago -- to signify the 31 seconds the plane was in the air from takeoff to crash. # Bryson Lang said he has " hundreds of little memories " of his parents, who were a " young, energetic couple. " Joy Lang said her memories are more " snapshot " because she was so young, but she remembers the family's home in Bull Valley. # After the event Saturday at Lake Park in Des Plaines, the siblings met with others whose parents were on the flight. Lake Park is home to a memorial to the victims -- a short wall with names etched into brick -- that was dedicated in 2011 about 2 miles east of the crash site. # A memorial to the victims of Flight 191 was dedicated in 2011 and sits at Lake Park in Des Plaines. Nader Issa/Sun-Times # The Lang siblings, who now each have two children of their own, were at that dedication eight years ago.